I do pastels, watercolours and oils. READING: I love the written word. Even if I don't have time, I read. Topics vary from, technological developments around the globe, historical fiction, fantasy to modern African literature. These days I enjoy reading autobiographies and historical novels. My favourite authors are Achebe, Tolstoy, Ian Banks, Austen, Orwell, Oyono, LaGuma, Dickens, Ishiguro, Forsythe, Hemmingway and Bitek.

Artist, Author, Editor, Writer & Designer with 20+ Years Publishing Experience

I am an artist, designer, author, editor and a creative freelance writer with over twenty years' experience in the industry working in print and online media. I am a novelist and short story author with work appearing in various print venues. As a journalist, I mostly write feature articles on the subject of music for Kenyan publications. I also create content for technical manuals, company profiles and websites, and I write copy for advertisement. I am a trained graphic designer with 20+ years' experience and I also develop websites. As an artist, I am a realist and work mostly in charcoal, oil, pastels and water colours, my subjects being wildlife, nature and portraits.

SUMMARY:

I am a novelist who is currently publishing books with a major Nairobi City publishing house. I am a talented writer and an occasional journalist, mostly writing features. I am an enthusiastic and creative reader-focused writer, adept at details, and produce first-rate work. I am gifted with zeal, energy, tremendous integrity and common sense. A reviewer once said "Ooko is exceptional. From the quality of his work to the adherence to deadlines, he is amazing. He communicates very effectively and I am confident whatever task is thrown at him, he can handle with flying colors!"

As an author, I have written, formatted, and published many books (Amazon Kindle and print) in the last few years. I edit books for independent self-published authors and writers looking to get their work traditionally published. I've worked as a freelancer and development editor for hundreds of clients in a wide variety of writing genres, categories and styles, including fiction, non-fiction and technical, essay, poetry, drama, memoir, inspirational, Christian, academic, autobiography, critique, law, business (promotional writing, proposals, presentations, press releases etc), scientific, software documentation, and more. I have worked for newspapers and magazines as a writer, editor and copyeditor. I have authored first-rate essays and articles for publication in print and online venues and I have mentored high school and college students as well as writers of all ages wishing to advance their skills. My strengths are simplifying sentences, finding plot holes, and proofreading for technical error.

I am also an artist professionally trained as graphic designer for print and electronic publishing. With enough experience in corporate business management, I have extensive experience in the art of visual communications and I have worked as a creative director in the dynamic and restless Nairobi corporate branding and advertising reality. My real experience in graphic design for print started when I realised, after working for many years as a product designer, that graphic design and computers is what I naturally loved and where I achieved more excellence. I have wide recognition as an expert in creative graphic arts leading me to taking positions at creative agencies as Senior Graphic Designer (Marketpower International), Art Director (Mashariki Brand Communication), Creative Director (Oba Kunta Octopus) and Communications Director (Newlife SDA Church). I have skillfully created and produced graphics and layout for print materials such as books, newsletters, brochures, flyers and reports. I have created corporate identity for businesses and smart graphics for websites, advertising, marketing and promotion, and brand development. My agency, Oba Kunta Octopus, is committed to advancing design as a professional craft, strategic tool, essential business implement and vital cultural force.

During my seventeen years' experience as a designer and a professional, I have worked in many and varied roles bordering on product design for development. I have worked in Kenya with Undugu Society, and with Housing and Building Research Institute, University of Nairobi in Association with Wageningen University, Holland. Later I worked with ILO, FIT Resources, FIT Uganda Ltd. and Technoserve. In 2000, I co-founded FIT Resources Ltd. as a development consultancy firm through which I effectively implemented product design and technology consultancies.

For years I have been known and seen, and best regarded as a good designer. I have worked professionally as a writer, designer and consultant in development projects in roles like project designer, design project manager and design consultant. I see myself simply as a designer with broad experiences and a penchant for doing hard tasks that directly use my expertise to increase value and benefits to businesses in Kenya. This is to say the least. I use every opportunity to expand my knowledge. Besides being very creative, I am a compulsive learner. I am a hard working person and I can do long and solitary projects that requires commitment and high levels of creativity. I am also a good manager and an effective organizer and team player. I think I have enough experience to do more than just creative projects.

RECENT FEEDBACK:

"Ooko was an amazing writer. He explored all details of our topics and made independent research on his own. His writing skills clearly show a deep academic foundation with talent to structure opinions in a neutral way. I would fully recommend him to all technical and non-technical works." - Dr. Oseno Ben, lecturer, School of Business, Masinde Muliro University, Kakamega, Kenya, September 2018.

"Wonderful and a great editor. Would recommend." - Dr. Evelyne Ndege, Lecturer, School of Music, Daystar University, Nairobi, May 2018.

"Ooko was exactly what I was looking for. I asked for honesty and he gave it. I would definitely hire him for any future project. He is a vital asset that made my work better." - Prof. Peter Wanyande, Lecturer, School of Political Science, University of Nairobi, Nairobi, May 2018.

EDUCATION AND TRAINING:

International Diploma in Creative Writing by correspondence

The Writing School, Kings Road, London, 1988 - 1991

Bachelor of Arts Graphic Design & Communication

University of Nairobi, 2003 – 2005

Diploma in Business Management

Kenya Institute of Management, 1998

Additional areas of study:

Diploma Graphic Design, Print Design, Communication

Kenya Polytechnic, 1990 – 1992

Languages Proficiency:

British (Commonwealth) English, American English, DhoLuo, Kiswahili and Lingala

SOFTWARE MASTERY:

I write on my word processor; I most entirely write and edit texts in MS Word. I possess practical working mastery of top-of-the-range design programs. I like to create layout in InDesign and graphic design in CorelDRAW. I can use Illustrator or Quark if necessary. However, I usually use CorelDRAW to draw and Illustrator to create design. I prefer CorelDRAW and normally work faster and achieve a lot with it. Photoshop is my preferred image editor and InDesign is my favourite page layout designer.

- I can use almost every famous publishing program or I can learn a new one very fast, if it is not in my list.
- I am at home both on PC and on Mac, but I prefer PC , even though I have more experience with Mac.

Accomplished a major research project and published Scrap Metal Recycling: A Product Development Study of Shauri Moyo - Kamukunji Jua Kali in 1995.

Summary of Responsibilities:

1. Technology transfer for development. I identified relevant low cost sustainable "proven" technologies developed by other organisations in Africa and other developing countries. We adapted and transferred these technologies to the needy communities in various parts of Kenya.

2. Product design and development is an integral part of any technology development process. We worked from ideas to create designs, adapt and modify technologies to make them suitable to the needs of our target users. Creative thinking was an asset in the technology development team.

4. Technology services to other projects. We helped provide high-quality housing and community amenities for low-income people. We also ensured that this was done using environmentally-sustainable methods.

- 125 new products were developed in metal and wood.
- Informal sector artisans and craft producers were trained.
- I did extensive research studies on scrap metal recycling and informal metal working systems.
- I increased informal artisans confidence in NGO workers by 25% during my period of employment through increased transparency and more effective and streamlined communication between Undugu and informal sector management.
